Psychologists categorize 15-20% of children as “hard to raise.” If this describes your child, there’s hope!

Challenging children often have difficulty processing the sensations and experiences of everyday life, and take out their stress on those around them. A quick tour through a child’s nervous system will help you understand why these kids act the way they do. You’ll also learn practical strategies to bring out the “masterpiece” that God created your child to be, as you tame their intensity and tap their potential!
